

In this brief yet very insightful video blog, we share how the country of Norway emulates the very same principles in the management of their government's pension fund as we do here at ISI. Interestingly, more and more institutional funds throughout the world have begun, and continue, to migrate over to this evidence-based approach to investing.