

Successful investing should never be exciting, but rather quite boring. We all have heard the fable of the tortoise and the hare, and we all know who eventually won. In the world of prudent investing, success most often favors those who embrace patience, and yes, boredom. Excitement comes from dangerous speculation and gambling. Caveat emptor!