

Most individuals focus too much on the “here and now” vs. the long road ahead. In the world of investing, this can lead to very poor, reactionary decisions. In this feature of our video blog, we take a look into a very common bias in the field of behavioral science. It's our sincere hope that this will help you to stay committed to your financial plan over the years ahead.