

One of the most common excuses for not investing more money on a regular basis is that we can't afford to. We simply don't have enough spare money. But we're all prone to spend more than we should. In this brief video, we see that it's our everyday spending habits that are chiefly to blame. Addressing these habits is essential if you want to be comfortable in retirement.